GAME RULES HELP

This is a online real-time game which simulates the US presidential election. This game can be played by two to eight players.(For an odd number of players, see [Rules for odd number of players]) The object of this game is to be elected "President of the United States ". A second place may be obtained as a Vice President-Elect on the winning ticket. The victory is achieved by the first winning the nomination of a party at the conclusion of the Primaries, and then the Presidential Election.

To start a game, players may choose to be a consultant or a presidential candidate of a political party. Player can either use real money to buy the "fun money" for playing the game or play as a consultant to make fun money. Presidential candidates can win the game by gaining votes and take the lead in states. The votes are collected either by visiting the states and making political appearances and speeches.

There are two main phases consist in the game: a 55-minute primary phase and a 5-minute convention phase.

[Primary Phase]

In the primary phase, candidates can either purchase (see [Bank&Purchasing]) political advertisement or travel (see [Travel]) across the nation to gain votes. Different candidates can visit that same state and the candidate can challenge the candidate who has just arrived and visited the same state to a debate (see [Debate]).

At the end of Primaries, the black cards which have not been used are returned to the bank. The money not spent is kept by the player.

[Convention Phase]

At the beginning of a convention phase, the system automatically computes the total of each player's votes in each division (states).

In each of the parties, player with the highest total votes wins the division. This player receives all the delegates for that division. The total number of delegates is computed for each player. To win the nomination of a party, a candidate must have the simple majority (more than 50% of the total). If no candidate has a simple majority, debates take place.

The candidate who has won the presidential nomination of a party can choose a fellow candidate as his running mate for the post of vice-president and take over the delegates own by his running mate.

The wireframe shows a user interface for a presidential election game. On the left, a vertical toolbar features navigation icons: up, down, left, right, and zoom (+/-). A map of the United States and surrounding regions is displayed, with state names like Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Alaska, and Hawaii visible. In the center, a window titled "NEWS CENTER" contains a "Selected news item" panel showing "News HEADLINE#1", "News HEADLINE#2", and "News HEADLINE#3". Below this is a "TOP 3 Candidates" section. To the right of the news center is a large "News Article #1" panel with a large "X" overlaid. Further right is another map of the eastern coast of North America, including New Brunswick, Maine, Nova Scotia, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, and The Bahamas. At the bottom right is a caricature of a smiling man. A "News Flash!!" box is positioned near the bottom right of the central map area. At the very bottom, a banner displays the text "Coming up: Debate in Nebraska - today, Press conference in Alabama - tomorrow, Meeting with SuperCar CE...". Below the banner are four buttons: "Debate" (two people icon), "Black Card" (black card icon), "Money: $xxxxxx" (text input field), "Votes: xxxxxx" (text input field), "Consultants: xx, yy, zz" (text input field), and "Leading (in states): xx" (text input field). On the far right, there is a portrait of a man. The bottom navigation bar includes links for "Market Place", "Manage Events", "Travel", "Desk", a home icon, "Time Left: 48 mins" (with a clock icon), the date "17th Dec 2012" (with a calendar icon), "Election Status" (with a graph icon), and "Help" (with a question mark icon).

The wireframe illustrates a game interface for presidential election planning. At the top, a map of North America shows the U.S. and Canada with various states/provinces labeled. A central modal window provides travel details:

- Time from Current Location: 800 minutes
- Select Consultants: Options for Consultant X, Y, or Z (each with a checkbox)
- Cost: $ 200.00

Icons at the top of the modal represent different modes of transport: airplane, train, car, and bus. To the right of the travel window, a map of the Eastern United States shows several states highlighted with circles.

Below the travel window, a banner displays the following text: "Coming up: Debate in Nebraska - today, Press conference in Alabama - tomorrow, Meeting with SuperCar CE..."

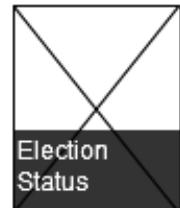

The main interface features several input fields and icons:

- Debate icon and button
- Black Card icon and button
- Money: $xxxxxx field
